INSURE.
EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE
SOCIETY OF U.S.A. gives the BEST SECURITY.
Lives there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself has said,
"I must protect my family life,
And so I must secure my life."
I would not be a soulless bore,
Who dies and leaves his family poor.
I'll pay a premium every year,
And then my loved ones need not fear.
But what, when I am in my grave,
They'll have for more than I can save,
Or if when old I living be,
The money will provide for me.
And as my age, even and bright
And peaceful as a summer night,
Shall lead me to the grave,
If you would be so kind to care,
And wish to find out just how much
Premium cost you will be,
Write, please, a call on us or me.

atmosphere around him, and the rope fastened round the stone pillar. When the hanging is complete the victim is removed from under the feet, and the rope is suspended, hanging by the hair of the back of his head. At times the skin of the head is torn away. Pangs were then there till about 3 p.m. He became unconscious at one time, and was taken down. He revived, and was again suspended. The Bishop, after striking and interrogating him, went in to prayers. After the chanting he came again with another Frenchman, a priest, to continue the torture of the man. And why? To compel him to join the Roman Catholic Church. In the evening he was taken down, taken into a room, allowed to sit on a kang, his arms bound behind his back by a rope, which was fixed to the top of a window. Dr. Ross, on learning of the case, applied to the Chinese authorities and after some trouble, owing to the resistance of the Bishop, obtained the release of the sufferer.

This extraordinary tale was reproduced the other day by one of our Shanghai contemporaries when Dr. Ross was in Shanghai attending a religious conference, and he was invited to "come forward with the whole evidence of the truth of this terrible incident at any cost, or make a manly retraction." Dr. Ross's reply to this invitation took the form of a brief letter to another paper, as follows:—"I understand that a good deal of interest has been excited over the photograph, who was 'suspended' to a stone pillar by his hair 'in the Roman Catholic Bishop's compound' in Moukden. A not unattractive curiosity would like to have full details of the case. But as, with the whole matter of Roman Catholic persecution of our converts in Manchuria, is referred to Peking, this curiosity must remain unmet. I am satisfied. Were I to give incidents related to me of the outrageous conduct of Roman Catholics supported by their ecclesiastical superiors, a whole copy of the 'N. C. Herald' would find to contain them all. It seems to me now that attention has been directed to this fertile source of 'anti-foreign' feeling throughout China, those who have well authenticated cases in different parts of the Empire should publish them so that general public indignation might effect the cure of the 'evil.' It seems rather inconsistent of Dr. Ross to ask other missionaries to publish their cases, while he excuses himself from going into the particulars of his own case when his original details are challenged. The fact of the matter having been referred to Peking does not seem a sufficient excuse. Mentioning a letter has been addressed to some of the Shanghai papers by a Roman Catholic missionary, who says:—'For the information of the public, we are glad to say that, being anxious to have the Moukden case cleared up, and examined, we obtained that Monsieur le Comte de CHATELAIN, Consul-General for France at Peking, should go to Newchwang and Moukden, where he remained from the 4th to the 18th of September. He carefully investigated into the whole affair, and his conclusion was that he had obtained at once the release of some Catholic converts incarcerated on the direct request of a certain Consul having charge there of French interests, and the indirect demand of Rev. J. Ross, or of his fellow-workers. The charges have been found and proved false. In answer to the question of the Comte de CHATELAIN about such irregular proceedings, the Newchwang Taoist and the Governor-General of Moukden both equally answered: 'These Christians have been incarcerated on the request of the Consul at Newchwang.' We must, in justice say that the above mentioned foreign Consul made a personal apology to Mr. GUILLOU, regretting that he had 'been misled.' The foreign Consul referred to is the English Consul, and if it be true that he has apologized to Miss GUILLOU and stated that he has been misled, it would seem that he must have satisfied himself that Dr. Ross's statements were unfounded.

Taking the case as it stands the impression created is not favourable to Dr. Ross. The tone of his letter to the 'North China Herald' is not calculated to inspire confidence in him as an impartial witness, and it is curious, if there really was anything in the case, that he did not in the first instance publish the particulars in China, where the publication would have been calculated to answer some useful purpose, instead of sending the tale for publication in a home religious journal of limited circulation and that only amongst a particular class. Home readers can swallow a good deal, but even they we think will have some little difficulty in negotiating the Bishop's 'stone pillar.' Assuming torture to be practised as described it would seem that an ordinary wretched man would better answer the purpose. Mr. PUNG is alleged when 'strung up' to have said to his tormentors: 'You want my blood, as his enemies wanted that of the Saviour,' which is itself a ridiculous and untrue statement. For the present, however, that an arrangement may be effected without the scandal of a public trial. The method of the Roman Catholic missionaries are, we believe, often open to objection, but the present case is not a question of discretion but of direct allegation of a high dignity of the Church. Very strong evidence would be required to make the public believe that any such case was complicated.
